

to have happened in our meeting. Now it is infinitely worse for all of us to be made a party to it by resorting to gambling to settle the question. I shall personally take this matter to the superintendent (or other authority).

G: Mr. Chairman: This is unfortunate, but we should settle this difficulty here. We must not let a report get out. It will reflect upon us personally and upon our organization.

Chairman asks A and B to drop the matter. Both insist on settling the matter by lot as agreed. He then appeals to F to drop his objections. He refuses.

G: (again) Mr. Chairman: I can appreciate how F feels, how we all feel. Since this sweater does not appear to be of great value and since F insists on getting us all into trouble over this incident, I should like to appeal to A and B to drop the matter and both give up their claims, with the suggestion that the sweater be given to F.

The chairman asks F if she will accept the sweater, and she says "No", but not very convincingly. He then appeals to A and B who finally consent. Then the Chairman offers the sweater to F. She reluctantly accepts the sweater and puts it on. All the actors then come to the front of the room.

Chairman: This little stunt is intended to remind us that we should all be very slow to believe any uncomplimentary remark that we may hear about a fellow member of (name of organization).

Because of the complex interrelation and overlapping of the various extracurricular activities and interests, many of the articles listed here might properly have been classified under a number of headings. To have listed items more than once would have been confusing, and so they have been placed arbitrarily according to the arrangement that seems most logical. Cross references have not been made, because they would be too numerous for space available and too involved for convenient use.

Items appearing in such departments as As the Editor Sees It, News Notes, and Comedy Cues are not listed in this volume index.
